Dear Harold,

I finally got my Warren Commission Hearings. I wondered why they took so long to get here - it turns out they came from London. They're in fantastic condition; I very much doubt if they have ever been opened. One problem though - I ended up having to buy a new bookcase to put them in. I had what I thought was a fairly strong bookcase in my bedroom, so I adjusted the shelves & put them there. As I was tightening the last screw, the metal supports gave out and the whole damn thing collapsed. There I was at 2 a.m. the morning trying to hold up 8 shelves of books & yelling for help. I couldn't even put the bookcase back up because the weight of the books had just about bent the supports in half. O well, I did need a bigger bookcase!

The enclosed articles have been laying here for awhile. I forget to send them. I have a box sitting here with the last 2 weeks papers in it. I hope to go through them within the next 2 days so I'll send you whatever I have on the CIA as soon as I get them copied. I'll be sure to send you whatever else comes up in the future on the CIA or Downing.

Best,

Karen
